What do I • think of the servant
situation?

Why, I haven't any servants!
That's what you think, lady.

Are you sure you've got the right house? We're the I. Budget Smiths. You're probably looking for the J. Tycoon Smiths, over on Golf Terrace.

No, Mrs. Smith, I mean YOU—

Well, something's wrong somewhere. I do all my own housework.

Not quite all, Mrs. Smith. You have some household appliances, haven't you?

Of course, but—

OF COURSE—that's the answer, Mrs. Smith. You DO have a servant, but you take that servant for granted. You've got a combination laundry, cook, cleaning woman, lamp-lighter, seamstress and entertainer—one who doesn't mind a few odd jobs like heating the bath water, guarding your food, fanning your fevered brow—

Oh, you mean Ruddy Kluwert!

Yes, Mrs. Smith, electricity—the universal servant who works 24 hours a day at low pre-war wages—and never asks for time off. Why, Mrs. Smith, your "servant situation" here in America is better than anywhere else in the world.

54 Million Jobs Sighted for 1946

Rise in Output of Civilian Goods Seen by Experts.

NEW YORK.—Civilian goods production will aggregate $80,318,000,000 a year by September, 1946, and provide jobs for 54,000,000 workers, the committee for economic development predicted.

Admitting that the United States since 1929 had never had "substantially full employment," the committee nevertheless declared that some of the present gloomy unemployment forecasts " verge on the hysterical."

A two-year study of statistics obtained from 145 manufacturing firms and 153 trade associations, numbering 20,000 members, indicates strongly, the committee stated, that within one year after full resumption of peacetime production the value of annual U. S. industrial output would top by 41.8 per cent the 1939 aggregate of $55,943,000,000.

"Business 'can and will be good' in the peacetime years immediately ahead," T. G. MacDowen, chairman of the group's marketing committee, told reporters.

The postwar labor force of 60,000,000, of whom the committee expects about $4,000,000 to obtain peacetime jobs, compares with a 1939 labor force of only 48,000,000 workers, of whom but 47,288,000 had jobs.

In 1939, the last year of peace before the outbreak of the Second World War, the labor force in the United States was 54,106,000, of whom 53,737,000 were gainfully employed. Last year there were 52,820,000 workers in civilian jobs and 11,390,000 in the armed services, out of a total labor force of 64,210,000.

Attention was called to the fact that recently many qualified observers have emphasized that numerous workers, women, for instance, and college students who took wartime jobs, will not want work immediately, thereby creating additional job opportunities for war veterans.

"Improved machinery, better methods and continuing increase in the efficiency of the American workmen will make it possible for the production to rise in greater proportion than the number of employees," the committee stated.

But while there admittedly is going to be a large-scale market for American manufacturers in the next few months, "suitable merchandising plans" are imperative if full consumption is to be realized, the committee said.
